What is the role of the Educator?

Working in children’s education and care services is very rewarding but can also be physically and emotionally demanding.

To be successful in your role as an educator you will find that it is important to:

- be reasonably fit and active – bending, lifting and squatting will be a part of your everyday activity
- have a good sense of humour and be patient
- work as part of a team use your initiative and adapt in a flexible manner to frequent change
- be prepared to take responsibility for your own work.

While the specific role of an educator will vary from service to service your role will generally be one of assisting qualified staff in the provision of early childhood care and education of young children. You will generally be responsible for helping to manage daily routines involving the children such as meals, setting up and packing away play materials, setting up the learning environment, cleaning, washing, preparation for sleep/rest, nappy change, toileting, guiding children’s behaviour and supervising children to ensure they are safe. You will work under the direction of a qualified member of staff and will usually be given a list of duties that need to be performed on a daily and weekly basis. You will be required to work in accordance with written policies and procedures that ensure compliance with licensing standards. You will meet and greet parents on a daily basis but you will not be responsible for discussing care issues with parents – this is the role and responsibility of qualified staff. You may be required to assist in documentation of children’s play and development, but this should be done only under the direction and supervision of qualified staff.

There a variety of roles within early childhood education and care services, including educators, cooks, cleaners and administrative staff - each of these roles contributes to the efficient and effective delivery of quality services for young children and their families.

Shifts

Each centre will have a different variety of shifts for Educators, generally Full Time Educators will work 5 shifts. There are also Part Time Educators that may only work a few days a week. Finally, there are Casual Educators that will work a minimum of 3 hours, and could be required for various reasons, to cover sick leave of staff members, to cover lunch breaks, or busy periods.

Do I have to do all 120 hours in 1 block or can I do it over time?
